

Knowledge

We are able to ask perfectly natural geometric questions that we can't answer.

Moreover, we can prove that they are unanswerable.

In other words, we can know that something is unknowable. Maybe this is not so depressing after all – it's a pretty amazing human accomplishment!

Paul Lockhart, Measurement